“Diogenes is reputed to have said “there is only a finger’s width of difference between a wise man and a fool.” He could as well have said “a wise woman” or “a wise girl.”

Marjorie Epperson and I were eleventh grade classmates along with 33 other students in January 1955 at Phillips High School in Bear Creek, Alabama. A year later 24 of us remained and would last until we graduated in May. I remember and still think favorably of each and all. In fact if assigned as either “wise” or “fool” I would consider all 23 to belong to the “wise” category - not necessarily perfect - after all, they were teenagers and thank goodness had time to grow and mature.

But if asked for an exemplar of good qualities I can stop with Marjorie, who day after day was cheerful, diligent, thoughtful, neat, and self assured as only one who understands that our real treasures are not of this earth but there is no sin in enjoying moderately what leads to pleasure and satisfaction. That combination constitutes wisdom.

Wayne and family, remember the blessings you have had. I am sorry to be unable to come to Alabama to be with you.
