“ I'm very lucky to have grown up around Mawmaw Mary for most of my life. Many Christmas's, Easters, Thanksgivings, and weekend sleepovers were held in her house, with her being just as excited as us kids. You always knew when she was home and missed her when she wasn't. She had a bell that she would ring, and my sister, cousin, and I would all race through the house to see who would get to help her. Now, I don't even think she needed the help as much as wanted to see us scramble to help our loving and respected matriarch. I heard her tell the story many times, chuckling over each word. She loved us just as much as we loved her, and she made sure we knew it. Her classiness, quick lip, and bright attitude will live with us forever. Rest well.
