Although the Atkins family doesn't know me, and I never had the opportunity to meet Mike, he touched my life in a personal sort of way. As a co-worker to my brother, Glenn Alexander, he saved his life one night at Decatur-Morgan Hospital, giving our family a miracle. I will forever be grateful for what he did without thought to his own safety. Wish I could have thanked him in person but that was not to be. My heart breaks for your loss, and my prayers are with you all. May God wrap you in the comfort of his loving embrace.

“ It was about 10:45pm at Parkway Medical one week day. It had been a horribly busy day in the ER, my help had gotten sick and had to go home, and there was only 15 minutes left before my shift ended and I could finally rest my aching feet. I was stressed and tired and my friend Dewayne, who's frequent stops by the registration area to flash me that smile and give me a hug and tell me "It's gonna be ok Mandy", was in the ER finishing up his duties for the day also. All of a sudden, the fire alarm begins to "ding and flash"! I said, "son of a..". With the switchboard operator long gone for the night, it was my job to run to the nearest fire alarm panel, which was behind the nurses station in the ER, and see where the "fire" was at. So i took off at lightning speed through the large ER door and saw Dewayne coming around the desk. Before I could say a word, but after I flashed that "I know the hell you didn't-look", he through his hands up and said, "I'm sorry, I had to!" They have to test the fire alarms every so often to make sure they are working properly, and he put it off for as long as he could because he new I had had a rough day. The world needs more loving, caring people like Dewayne Atkins. It brings tears to my eyes to know that I won't see his sweet smile on this earth again, but gives me a big smile on my face to know I will see him again in heaven! Thank you for being such a good, sweet friend, and I expect one of those "signature" hugs of yours shortly after I enter the gates of heaven on that sweet day! Love you, my friend.

*I am very saddened at Dewayne's passing. He was a great friend and co-worker. I will miss his jokes, his laughs, his huge smiles, his presence, and his friendship. He has told me so much about his wonderful family and beautiful grandchildren. He was so proud of them and was always bragging with pictures of them. I will never forget Dewayne and I'm so blessed to have known him. Please know your family is in my thoughts and prayers. *~Rest in peace, my dear friend, until we meet again!!!~
